

Group Transportation for Girl Scouts – Troop-Level Form

Group transportation, such as when Girl Scouts travel together to an activity or on a trip, is typically coordinated by troop leaders and involves arranging rides for others. When arranging group transportation with multiple drivers, make sure of the following:

- Drivers are registered, background-checked adult volunteers who have a valid driver's license, a safe driving record, and a registered and insured vehicle, and who meet all council driving policies.
- Drivers are at least 21 years old. Experience matters, so make sure drivers have the ability and maturity to drive groups of children. Please note: Girl Scout youth members are not permitted to drive other members.
- For single-vehicle travel, at least two unrelated, background-checked adult volunteers, one of them female, must be present.
- For multi-car travel, the entire group must include at least two unrelated, background-checked adult volunteers, one of them female. Each car must have at least one adult, and the group should travel the same route during the same time period.
